Google announced the WebP format in September 2010; the company released the first stable version of its supporting library in April 2018. WebP has seen widespread adoption across the Internet in order to reduce image size, with all major browsers currently supporting the format. However, critics have questioned whether it offers tangible speed benefits, and cited its lack of compatibility with older software and use as a replacement for JPEG or PNG source files as making the format user-unfriendly for those who download and save images, often requiring a time-consuming conversion... 0d007854c0
