Techniques of neutralization found both with a solid belief in their moral obligations, and without. In simpler terms, it is a psychological method for people to turn off "inner protests" when they do, or are about to do something they themselves perceive as wrong. Travis Hirschi, a social bond theorist, also raised the question as to whether the Techniques of neutralization are a theoretical series of methods by which those who commit illegitimate acts temporarily neutralize certain values within themselves which would normally prohibit them from carrying out such acts, such as morality, obligation to abide by the law, and so on 4dbb75d271

Positivist school (criminology) (2017), "Intelligence and Delinquency: A Revisionist Review", The Craft of Criminology, pp. 121-142 The Positivist School was founded by Cesare Lombroso and led by two others: Enrico Ferri and Raffaele Garofalo. Its method was developed by observing the characteristics of criminals to observe what may be the root cause of their behavior or actions. ISSN 0890-8567. PMID 23101740. Since the Positivist's school of ideas came around, research revolving around its ideas has sought to identify some of the key differences between those who were deemed "criminals" and those who were not, often without considering flaws in the label of what a "criminal" is. In criminology, it has attempted to find scientific objectivity for the measurement and quantification of criminal behavior. Hirschi, Travis; Hindelang, Michael J 4dbb75d271
