10-year-old Michael and his family have recently moved into a new house. He and his parents are nervous, as his new baby sister (who they have not named yet) was born earlier than expected and may not live because of a heart condition, and because they have to start over in a new home. When Michael goes into the garage, he finds a strange emaciated man hidden amid all the boxes, debris and dead insects. Defined by twin peaks and a central valley called Christ's Saddle, the island has a steep and inhospitable landscape. It is best known for its Gaelic monastery, founded between the 6th and 8th centuries, and its variety of inhabiting species, which include gannets, puffins, a colony of razorbills and a population of approximately fifty grey seals. 2a70bf91ad

 == Plot ==
 Secondary school student Michael Cooper moves to a decrepit house with his parents. Soon after, his baby sister is born. The newborn baby is found to be suffering from a heart condition and is sent to the hospital. Michael investigates the dilapidated garden shed and meets Skellig, a man with owl wings. Michael befriends a girl named Mina, who is equally intrigued by Skellig. When the couple argue about moving away, Michael brings Skellig outside and his father, Dave, burns the shed. Michael and Mina take Skellig to a tall tower, where Skellig reveals his magical ability. The condition of the baby worsens and Michael frequently visits the hospital, where he meets a dying woman named Grace. Encouraged by Michael, Skellig allegedly visits the hospital to save the girl, whom Michael and his parents named Grace Joy. Some time later, Skellig spends time with Michael and Mina.

Editors at AllMusic rated this album 4 out of 5 stars, with critic James Christopher Monger writing that this album is "a notable departure from the folktronica neo-soul" in Gray's previous work and while it "bears the hallmarks of a Gray production" this music is "undeniably minimalist" and with an Irish quality that comes from his collaborators. American Songwriter's Lee Zimmerman scored Skellig a 4.5 out of 5 stars, stating that it "hews to the haunting delivery and ethereal atmospherics that have characterized his work practically since day one" and "it represented a certain solace and escape from the increasing distraction of the noise and intrusion that always seems so overwhelming in today's modern world" due to the Irish character of the music. Tony Clayton-Lea of The Irish Times scored this album 4 out of 5 stars, characterizing the music as "sublime calm" and "a serene career highlight".
