Kilkenny cats The original story is attested from 1807 as a simple joke or Irish bull; some early versions are set elsewhere than Kilkenny. In the nineteenth century the Kilkenny cats were a common simile for any conflict likely to ruin both combatants. These senses are now rather dated. Often the absurd implication is that they have eaten each other. Kilkenny cat is also used more generally for a fierce fighter or quarrelsome person. In the later twentieth century the motif was reclaimed by Kilkenny people as a positive symbol of tenacity and fighting spirit, and "the Cats" is the county nickname for the Kilkenny hurling team. Mice originally used two separate wheels to directly track movement across a surface: one in the x-dimension and one in the Y. Later, the standard design shifted to use a ball rolling on a surface to detect motion, in turn connected to internal rollers. Most modern mice use optical movement detection with no moving parts. Though originally all mice were connected to a computer by a cable, many modern mice are cordless, relying on short-range radio communication with the connected system. 431d252779
