Carbon accounting Organizations will often set an emissions baseline, create targets for reducing emissions, and track progress towards them. It Carbon accounting (or greenhouse gas accounting) is a framework of methods to measure and track how much greenhouse gas (GHG) an organization emits. It can also be used to track projects or actions to reduce emissions in sectors such as forestry or renewable energy. The accounting methods enable them to do this in a more consistent and transparent manner. Corporations, cities and other groups use these techniques to help limit climate change. Financial crisis 'Don't blame the New Deal' Archived A financial crisis is any of a broad variety of situations in which some financial assets suddenly lose a large part of their nominal value. Financial crises directly result in a loss of paper wealth but do not necessarily result in significant changes in the real economy (for example, the crisis resulting from the famous tulip mania bubble in the 17th century). In the 19th and early 20th centuries, many financial crises were associated with banking panics, and many recessions coincided with these panics. Strauss Kahn D, 'A systemic crisis demands systemic solutions', The Financial Times, 25 September 2008. 160-2. pp. Other situations that are often called financial crises include stock market crashes and the bursting of other financial bubbles, currency crises, and sovereign defaults 492a149598
