By the 15th century, Ikebana embodied what it is known for today, an art form with a spiritual foundation. Kado, which means “way of the flower,” is used in Ikebana practice and began to spread into more of an aesthetic than a spiritual representation during this time. Shofu Ryu, like all schools, originated from the first school of Ikebana. This ritual, which started in India, consisted of throwing “floral offerings” to the spirits of those who had passed. By the 10th century, containers were used for the floral offerings, slowly representing the development of Ikebana. Ikebana is a way to connect with the flowers through active. Ikebana accompanied Buddhism's arrival in Japan in the 6th century and evolved from a Buddhist ritual 8c84498016

These open 'day' boats worked short distances carrying bulk cargoes such as coal and iron ore. The name refers to the short journey, where the crew would take the boat to its destination and then swap to another, empty boat to sail home the same day. Though often referred to as a 'Joey', a Joey was a double prow ended vessel that moved the rudder from one end to the other, so it didn't need to be turned around in a congested canal Although most working boats at the time were wooden, larger firms used riveted iron boats like this one as though more expensive to build they lasted longer.
